Check Your Surge Protector!

A recent house fire in Cary, NC is being cited as at least the fifth to be connected to a specific surge protector that is often installed with heating and air conditioners.

"Tis the season that we are all running our heat more than usual (especially with this nasty cold front the Northeast has been experiencing!)

The affected surge protectors are Type 2 Supco Model SCM150 and Sycom Model SYC-120/240-T2. These models have been deemed potentially hazardous by Underwriters Laboratories (UL).

Please spread the word and check your surge protectors. In the case of the Cary, NC fire, inspectors say the surge protector on the A/C unit caught fire. If your home does have one of the devices listed, we urge you to contact a licensed electrician or HVAC technician to inspect for safety.

Team Building Through the Holidays

Teambuilding is a great part of any organization and this past holiday season Bill (the owner of Northstar) suggested that we spend our holiday party at Bury the Hatchet. A great time was had by all as we honed our axe throwing skills as well as deepened our relationships with our coworkers.
