THE POPE COMES TO PHILADELPHIA— NO INNER CITY WORK TO BE DONE THAT WEEK.

The week of September 21st through 27th there are several large religious ceremonies and the Roman Catholic Pope will be visiting Philadelphia. During these events many roads will be closed and traffic into and out of the city will be blocked and at some points completely stopped. Due to this situation we will not be performing any service work in the inner city sections of Philadelphia during the week of these ceremonies.

We have been told that only emergency services and transport to the ceremonies will be allowed in the yellow portions of the image to the right at that time. This means that most businesses, parking garages, and public transportation systems will be closed or limited during this timeframe. Our inability to provide service to locations in the central Philadelphia city should not be much of an inconvenience as many customers will be closed in those regions.

Contact us with questions and for more updates and to follow the progress of the Pope's visit, you can visit this website.

See below for an image of the section of the city street closures, this will also include the Ben Franklin Bridge.

Back to School Safety

School is in session and the safety of our future depends on us! We all need to be extra diligent to watch for children walking, biking and the buses that are carrying them.

Remember that if a bus has flashing red lights, you must stop at least 500 feet from it as children are getting on and off the vehicle. It's the law. The only time you do NOT have to stop is if it is a divided highway and you are traveling in the opposite direction of the bus. You may continue driving, but you should slow your speed for safety.

Always watch for suspicious activity in your neighborhood or in school locations. Child abductions can happen right before your eyes and often when children are walking home. If you see anything at all, you should report it.

If you have children, school shopping is a must! Backpacks can cause stress on growing bodies. Make sure the straps are well padded and tight enough that the back is not drooping down the back or hanging low. The arms should be able to be crossed, but the bag should not slide up and down the body.

With all the technology out there, talk to your kids about walking and biking with their focus on the roads, and no headphones on. They need to pay attention to drivers and other dangers that might be present. A crack in the sidewalk could be a problem if your face is buried in a phone!
